REV. DR. NEWMAN SMYTH.

Report of His Examination at New Haven.

(Correspondence of the Boston Journal.)

An event of much importance among theologians and especially to those who believe in Congregationalism doctrines, was the examination in New Haven before a church council convened for the purpose of the Rev Newman Smyth D D, late of Quincy, Ill preparatory to his acceptance as pastor of the Central Congregational Church in New Haven It will be remembered that Dr Smyth was called to the vacant chair at Andover, but was rejected by the casting vote of the President of the Board of Visitors on purely rhetorical grounds after acknowledging the soundness of his creed, and in spite of the unanimous vote of the Board of Trustees to extend him the call Almost immediately following his rejection came the call to the church here, and to day was appointed for his examination Invited the council Dr Smyth who has been filling a Presbyterian pulpit in Illinois, arrived here on Wednesday night and in conversation with his friends expressed himself as satisfied of his ability to meet with the approval of the Council an opinion which was not so general throughout the city It was well known that the ordinary tenets and creeds of the church he thoroughly accepted but his views on annihilation and probation were considered to have a radical tendency and it was agreed that his success or failure before the Council would hinge upon these important doctrines When the Council assembled in the morning the church was fairly well filled a large proportion of the lay element of the audience being ladies The first replies made by Dr Smyth in regard to the motives which led him to adopt the ministry as his profession produced a most favorable impression upon his hearers, later when he made the statement of his beliefs, to judge by the faces of the auditors opinion was more or less divided, but he carried everything before him in the searching examination which followed conducted at first by the Moderator, and afterward in reply to questions by members of the Council, and showed by the readiness with which he answered all queries on the most abstruse points that he felt himself master of the situation and capable of successfully coping in an intellectual struggle with any of his opponents And to do this he needed to possess an ability of no ordinary degree for the Council as befitted the occasion was a notable one in its composition, including among its members such men as President Porter of Yale College, Dr Woolsey, ex President of the same institution Rev Dr Barbour Rev Dr John E Todd Rev Thomas R Bacon, son of the late Dr Leonard Bacon, Rev Dr Alexander McKenzie of Cambridge Rev Dr J T Duryea of Boston, and Professors Harris and Fisher of New Haven These men would not be satisfied with any light skimming over of church doctrines, but would probe to the bottom the learning study motives and belief of the candidate But he passed through the ordeal with flying colors, his examination being approved by a vote practically unanimous, only one member voting in the negative Although the result had been foreshadowed almost from the moment the examination was begun, such a general unity of feeling was a surprise even to the most sanguine In the secret session of the council the candidate was heartily commended by the members in general and it could not be learned upon what objections the negative vote was based A member of the council said that he never attended a more exhaustive examination and, moreover, never heard such clear cut, thorough and prompt answers

Dr Smyth is a gentleman who creates a favorable impression at first sight He is a little above the general stature, with a small head squarely set upon broad shoulders, dark hair and fair fringed with a short beard inclined to auburn in its tint, blue eyes intelligence and a general expression in the face and eyes of gentleness under ordinary circumstances, but suggesting a talent force and determination sufficient to overcome all obstacles He is quiet in his manner but with a certain self-assurance rather attractive than otherwise He gave evidence to-day of being a man of close study, deep thought and strong convictions, a man who would not adopt or change a belief except upon earnest conviction that the change is right, and that conviction only to be brought about after long and careful thought, applied with equal consideration to both views of the subject, in short, such a man as to cause two of the most prominent men of the council to exchange earnest and deep regrets that he could not occupy the chair at Andover.

THE EXAMINATION

The examination was announced to begin at 10 o'clock and at that hour the members of the Council assembled in the chapel in Chapel street and organized by the choice of Rev John E Todd, D D, of the Church of the Redeemer, New Haven, as Moderator, and Rev Isaac C Meserve of Davenport Church, New Haven, Scribe The Council was made up as follows S S Baldwin, Church of the United Society, New Haven, Rev. William M Barbour, D D, and Cyrus Northrup Church in Yale College, New Haven, Rev Steven R Dennen, D D, and E B Bowditch, Third Congregational Church, New Haven, Deacon Isaiah Butler, Temple Street Church, New Haven, Rev Burdett Hart and Deacon William Hemenway, First Church Fair Haven, Deacon N W Morgan, College Street New Haven, Rev James L Willard, Westville Church, New Haven, Rev. John E Todd, D D, and Deacon Hiram Camp, Church of the Redeemer, New Haven; Deacon Lucius Rowe, Second Church, Fair Haven, Rev. Isaac C. Meserve and Edward Stevens, Davenport Church, New Haven, Rev D W Teller, Howard Avenue Church, New Haven, Wm. J Atwater, Humphrey Street Church New Haven; Deacon Joseph E Bradley, Taylor Church, New Haven, Rev. Thomas R Bacon and E P Yale, Dwight Place Church, New Haven, Deacon Rowland Swift, First Church, Hartford, Rev Alexander Mackenzie, D D and Hon Charles Theodore Russell, First Church, Cambridge, Mass, Rev. Joseph F Duryea, D D, Central Church, Boston These clergymen also took part in the Council Rev. Noah Porter, D D., Rev. George E Day, D D., Rev. George T Lado, D D., Rev. Henry S. Kelsey, Rev Spencer H Bray and Rev. Newton I Jones, of New Haven; Rev. Egbert C Smyth, D D., Andover Mass.; Rev. T D Woolsey, D D and Prof Samuel Harris, D D, of New Haven

After the organization, the Council adjourned to the church, when the proceedings were opened with prayer by the Moderator The records of the church and society extending the call to Dr Smyth by a vote of 40 to 17 with 5 blanks was read It was also the reply from Dr Smyth accepting the call at a yearly salary of $3,000 The candidate next presented letters showing that he was a member in good standing of the First Church, in Brunswick, Me, and that he had been regularly dismissed by the Presbytery of Schuyler, Ill. the letter of dismissal expressing deep regret at the parting These letters were pronounced satisfactory, and Dr Smyth was asked by the Moderator regarding the length of his connection with the church and the motives which led him to adopt the ministry To these interrogations he replied that he could only speak in general terms of his personal religious experience, and his hope in the Lord Jesus Christ as his Saviour He united with the Church in his thirteenth year, while at Phillips Academy, although his true religious experience began earlier, with his first consciousness of life In fact he would date it back to the beginning of his life with his first sense of childish wrong or even before he was born, with his mother's faith and prayers He had had nothing eventful in his religious experience to separate it from that of any others who have been trying to follow Christ He said, with an emphasis which called forth a smile, that he believed he was predestinated for the ministry, such a factor had been among the first plans of his life, and had grown with his growth It was a part of his early resolutions, and the feeling had never decreased, but had steadily grown and he was never more determined than now that he was right in the adoption of his calling In regard to his confidence and hopefulness concerning success in the ministry, he saw an evidence that the nation was progressive and that the people are hungering after the truth and he considered the prospects of the Church brighter than ever He then read the following statement

DR SMYTH'S STATEMENT OF HIS BELIEF

I believe that our knowledge of Divine truth is real and trustworthy but limited and partial. I would avoid over belief as I would escape unbelief. I would be aware of two practical heresies as endangering all vital faith, the error, first, of supposing that we are capable of formulating a perfect system of truth, and the error, secondly of assuming that God has given us the Bible for the purpose of a complete vindication of His ways toward men I believe that the God of the Bible deals with us as with children and for the immediate practical purposes of our salvation from sin and education for the kingdom of heaven I would be mindful, therefore, of the limits as well as of the contents of reason and revelation in the definition and development of every theological dogma

The following statements contain my belief concerning some of the chief subjects of theological inquiry

I Revelation I believe in one God existing in three eternal distinctions of being of absolute moral perfection, who proves himself in the moral and spiritual life of humanity, and whose thoughts are made known in His works to beings capable of the idea of God I believe that God has not left himself without witness in every nation and age, but He graciously selected one nation and trained it by a particular supernatural action in order that it might be the bearer of a special Divine revelation to the world This Divine choice and use of a line of selected individuals is the means of revelation I regard as consistent with both natural and moral law and with the universality of grace I believe that this progressive work of Divine revelation through the history of the chosen people from the first looked forward toward and at last culminated in Jesus the Christ who is himself God's real and final self revelation The Word became flesh I believe that Jesus Christ himself is the final and infallible authority of faith and practice I believe that the sacred Scriptures are in part the record and interpretation, in part the contents of the revelation from God which is fulfilled in Christ The Bible, as a whole and as the Scriptures as fulfilled in Christ I accept as a supreme and authoritative written rule or canon of faith and practice The divers ways and manners in which God spoke in the different times or degrees of inspiration are to me matters of historical and critical study but not vital elements in my belief in the reality of a Divine revelation completed in Jesus Christ I believe that besides the written canon of faith we have as a second any source and aid the Christian tradition or the continuity and progressive development of the faith in the mind of the Church through the Spirit of Christ

II Doctrine of Man I believe that man is a spiritual unity, or person, and as such possessed of moral freedom, and incapable of dissolution by the physical change of death I believe that all men are sinners and in sin man falls into a fatally wrong personal position toward God Sin is alienation from God The necessary consequence of being in the wrong toward God is disunion and corruption within man's own personality I believe that no possible righteous in either and lower relations of life can atone for wrongness in the first, supreme and vital relation of man to the Father of his spirit In this connection I would emphasize the personal nature of true religion and deprecate all tendencies in theology to substitute for the intence Biblical conceptions of righteousness and sin as personal relations toward God, any formal conception of religion, as for example, the relation of the mind to truth or the will to commandment The true life is to know God I believe that as sin concerns two persons, the sinner and God, so sin cannot be removed and the right relation of life toward God restored by the willingness or act of either person alone, man or the Father of his being On account of the nature of sin as well as the consequences of it, man is in need of Divine redemption and renewal by the Holy Spirit

III The Atonement I believe that God from eternity is willing to forgive and to restore, having loved us before we loved Him I believe that in the moral nature of things the willingness to forgive is not all that is necessary for the reality of forgiveness, and that therefore, God's love has led Him to such act or outgoing from Himself as is necessary for the realization on earth of His eternal willingness to forgive I learn what is necessary for the reality of Divine forgiveness from what God in history has done, that he might have power on earth to forgive sins, viz, the life and death of the Son of His love I would entertain hospitably all things of the atonement as helps to our conception of it, but I am satisfied with none as a perfect explanation of the mystery of grace As I find, however, that the Spirit of Christ has been leading the mind of the Church, through the history of this doctrine, into more purely ethical and spiritual conceptions of Christ's work, I should accept with the most satisfaction those views of the atonement in which such elements are predominant.

Of general theories the once commonly received governmental view seems to me a good secondary but poor primary theory, it rests, I do, on secondary and historical relations of God and man, and not on essential and primary relations of the personality of God. To me it lacks ethical thoroughness. The moral influence theory, while happily free from legal fictions and unmoral methods of procedure, is unsatisfactory to me in so far as it fails to apprehend and to emphasize the ethical necessity to a perfect being of self-satisfaction and the condemnation of sin through suffering for it in forgiving it.

In order to prevent misapprehension upon a subject of so great importance, I will briefly indicate my belief in the following elements of a doctrine of the Atonement.

1. Some outgoing of God toward sinners by which shall be realized in human history His whole disposition toward sin. Forgiveness cannot be a passive state of Divine disposition, or mere manifestation of what God would do. Atonement is what God has done More than a manifestation of God in Christ is required, some Christ actualization, or realization of God in Christ in our humanity seems necessary for the reality of forgiveness

2. God's satisfaction of Himself in His whole ethical personality in the forgiveness of sin It might be legal pardon but would not be human and still His Divine forgiveness if the whole moral personality should not be satisfied in the restoration of the wrong-doer to the friendship God in His righteousness, therefore, as well as in His grace must really enter into and be satisfied in the forgiveness of sins on earth

3 Such a realization of the Divine character in our history as to draw us to God in penitence and faith.

Such a self satisfaction of God in His whole moral personality in the forgiveness of sins as shall satisfy the moral nature of all holy beings, and thereby preserve all moral interests of the Kingdom of God Whatever relation toward sinners at which God Himself will answer the ends of the Divine government and fulfill the spirit and purpose of the law.

5 The possibility of such self realization in humanity and such self satisfaction of God in taking away the sin of the world I find in the capacity for vicarious life and suffering which is imminent in the nature of love Vicariousness is one of the primary relations possible between moral persons and is possessed therefore by the infinite One in the highest degree. The idea of a perfect moral Being involves the possibility of perfect vicariousness of character on and self substitution for another

6 The vicarious method of God's forgiveness of man's sin in the life and death of Jesus Christ in whose person all the conditions for the work of Divine forgiveness of sin on earth are met This vicarious method of God's forgiveness through Christ I can study with the most satisfaction by pondering the ethical elements necessarily involved in any true personal forgiveness of wrong The Divine grief over the sins of the world realized to the sufferings of the Christ seems to me to be an imminent necessity of perfect love I confess, however, that the clearest views of the Atonement which at times I can obtain from the highest human analogies I find for give essence but glimpses into the mystery of Divine grace by the cross of Christ

IV The Future Life The centre of the Biblical doctrine of the future life is Jesus' teaching concerning the final judgment I believe that this present dispensation or world age shall come to an end at the day of judgment I believe that this world age is the time of probation and that any person born into this world shall have one fair and sufficient probation under conditions of grace I believe that the end of probation is for the present system as a whole the day of judgment, and for the individual his confirmation in good or evil I believe that the end of probation for the individual is not, and from the nature of moral freedom can not be any outward circumstance, temporal accident or physical change, like the death of the body I believe that now the conditions of eternal life are offered in the Gospel and that whoever wilfully neglects or rejects them is in danger of the sin against the Holy Ghost, which Jesus said had never forgiveness either in this world or the world to come.

I believe that it is only partially in the development of God's purpose of grace and nature the limitations of a system of nature sufficient conditions of grace as probation may not have been furnished in this world to any particular generation class or individual (as, for example infants, idiots, adult deliverance some heathen and children born apparently to no moral chance) I can trust God to provide for such some special opportunity for repentance in Hades before the final judgment I cannot but think there is some Scripture warrant for this trust in the fact that Jesus preached to a certain class of spirits in Hades It also seems to me to be a logical deduction from the Biblical principle of individual accountability which has been maintained in our New England theology While as a preacher of the Gospel I have no authority to offer to any man any time of salvation, but now I must allow that Jesus Christ before He shall give up His mediatorial kingdom to the Father, may have opportunities unrevealed to us of offering Himself graciously to any who may not have had a decisive probation in this life. Of what constitutes, in particular cases a decisive probation under conditions of grace, we are not the judges, but God shall judge

I believe that the obligation of Christian missions rests upon the commandment of the Lord and will be increasingly owned by the church in proportion as it obtains higher views of love for the world but so sacred a cause should not be bound up with extra Scriptural limitations of God's mercy

I believe that when the end of this world shall come at the last great day, those things which are temporal shall be superseded by those things which are eternal What this eternal order or kind of existence is, I have not now, under this present temporal form of life power definitely to conceive I regard such phrases as 'endless time,' 'everlasting duration,' as unreasonable expressions of the finality or permanence of the judgment, but not as proper depositions of the eternal, which transcends conception and I accept Jesus' teaching of the possibility of eternal life or death in the moral positiveness and metaphysical indefiniteness to which He saw fit to leave for our future life I do not deny often too heavy to be borne in imposed upon this faith by the traditions of men who add to Jesus' simple gospel their vain earthly and temporal imaginations of the eternal life and its retributions

I cannot believe in annihilation or the extinction from the sum of being of any thing that has been made How far moral personality may be self vacated by persistent sin, and a soul killed is one of those doubtful questions which I am content to wait for the day of revelations to answer I cannot find either in Scripture or Christian reason sufficient authority to warrant teaching as a dogma the hope of a final reconciliation of all evil to the good will of God I cannot deny the possibility inherent in moral freedom of eternal sin, and I think that Jesus leaves open, as a real danger to be feared, the possibility of a final rejection of the Holy Spirit In full sympathy with the objects of evangelical preaching concerning the rewards and punishments of the future life, and in the endeavor to keep the solemn sanctions of eternity in the hearts and consciences of men I would preach the positive, verifiable, moral elements of retribution, and be content with an humble indefiniteness and reserve concerning those portions of the Biblical doctrine of the last things of which we can form at best only negative conceptions and also with regard to those final issues of creation which the God of the Bible has not chosen clearly to disclose to us in this period of our mental and moral education.

Finally, and in general, I accept as marking my spiritual ancestry, the historic creeds of the church, and in that line of evangelical descent I am not ashamed to stand holding, however, my inherited beliefs in the responsibilities of Christian liberty, subject always to correction and expansion, praying ever for the teachable spirit and hoping that in the humility of true theological science I may keep the faith of the Christian ages, and in the love of whatsoever things are true, in the unity of the Spirit with all honest thinkers, I would press forward toward the full and final orthodoxy of the kingdom of God.

By vote of the Council the Moderator continued the examination when the reading of the statement was finished. Dr Todd asked, "What is your strongest evidence of the existence of God?" "God Himself," was the reply, almost before the question was finished.

As a mere logical or formal argument, continued the candidate, there is no possible demonstration of God, but He reveals Himself to us by His influence in the rational, moral and spiritual life of man. His works are a perfect revelation to beings capable of understanding them There are elements in the Bible which I am unable to explain except as I admit a Divine and supernatural cause, the revelation in the word of God I consider progressive and complete. I would distinguish the Scriptures from all other human writings by the fact that they contain a special revelation from God, they are in part the contents of and in part the record of such a revelation, particularly in regard to the moral nature of the Deity, a disclosure which the pagan world would be unable to originate, I place great reliance on the record of the Evangelists on the ground that the Apostles were specially chosen and commissioned by Jesus, and the writers were especially fitted for the work given them to do Man is a sinful being, that is, a man would be wrong, would assume totally wrong relations toward another human being, and man is constantly in this relation toward God, a person who has exercised no choice or has had no opportunity to do so, would not be personally guilty, all mankind is in need of redemption, and no man by his own unaided works can make atonement for himself, the name of Jesus Christ is the only one given under Heaven by which men can be saved, and through Him and God everybody can be saved. I believe thoroughly in the Nicene doctrine of the Trinity, which is the only one that is entirely satisfactory to me Regeneration is the work of God and man and consists in bringing man from a false and disastrous personal relation to God into a true, real and loving relation with God Himself, it cannot be effected by man alone, but needs the special influence and grace of the Spirit of God; the process is as easily described as the sunrise, both are the work of God I cannot conceive of any good that does not come from God The whole divine nature of man requires the atonement, there is no true coming to Christ without repentance, which is turning from the wrong to the right in relation to God Faith is a personal trust in God, by no means merely an intellectual belief, and all who are capable of a personal fear can experience faith, all should before repentance which I do not believe is limited by age, I am in favor of admitting children to the Church and believe that they grow up to be the best Christians De pendence and faith should be the general conditions of membership with the Church which is a continuous manifestation as is a body organized by the self for the spirit of Christ of His life in the world Here the candidate added in regard to the Congregational Church I care little for the harness in which I work provided that it does not chafe too much at the breeching Continuing, he said Baptism is the sign and seal of the fact that a child is born into a world of sin and that it belongs to Christ, it should be administered to the children of Christian parents on the ground of the faith of those parents in their covenant relations with God The Lord's Supper means more than a mere memorial service Christ offers Himself in that way to us more graciously and fully than by any other means, it should be administered, on principle to those who love the Lord Jesus Christ and desire to be known as His followers The last day is the passing away of time into eternity, the doctrine of the resurrection secures to us the truth of personal continuity, in the resurrection I believe that though the flesh return to dust the personality shall be clothed up with the elements of the celestial and eternal world I do not believe in the extinction as a summa total, of anything created It is as a whole not possible for me to conceive at all of eternity there is a broad distinction between endless everlasting, and eternal, the first two being attempts made under a form of time to form a conception of the intuition of the last Upon answering a question as to belief in perfection "I look upon perfection as a humbug" Dr Todd turned to the council with a smile and said that he had nothing more to ask

The roll of the Council was called and nine of the thirty four members desired to ask questions, nearly all of which referred to the candidate's belief in probation and annihilation, To Professor Baldwin he said that he would admit to the church children that simply showed evidence of a Christian character To Professor Barbour he made the statement that the cessation of the period of probation before death in his opinion only, depended upon how far a man, by persistent sin can sink to the level of nothing Professor Northrop was particularly persistent on the matter of future probation Dr Smyth replying that the proper time for probation or its cessation he should leave to the decision of the Divine Judge, he did not think the period would be altered by any particular change of the body it would end only when the man, on earth or in Hades, came to a confirmed determination for good or for evil he did not consider that, on any funeral occasion he should be warranted in pronouncing final judgment on the character of any man But, in his preaching, he should be careful not to go too far, or to dwell too much on this question of probation and thereby provoke a reaction To Dr Dennen in reply to a question concerning decisive probation, he answered that in such cases as those of children born to crime, and others having no opportunity to make a personal choice, he could not find it in his heart to say that they were predestinated to eternal condemnation To Prof Hart, he said that he should insist strongly on the Bible as a revelation of God but that question should be distinct from that of the theory of the revelation To Dr Smyth of Andover he answered that he utterly rejected predestination in its high Calvinistic form Brief questions were asked by Drs Day and Fisher and President Porter, the latter seeming quite delighted with the answers, and the examination was declared closed and the Council went into secret session

Throughout the entire course of the examination the proceedings absorbed the closest attention of the entire audience the larger portion of which exhibited especial interest, and often when Dr Smyth answered with ease what appeared to be a perplexing question were only restrained by the character of the edifice from breaking out into enthusiastic applause, as it was a half stifled murmur arose and hands were involuntarily brought together to sign its approbation The Council remained in session about an hour and a half, in the course of which the examination was generally and favorably criticised It was then voted, thirty three in the affirmative and one a layman in the negative, "that the examination of the pastor-elect is satisfactory and that the Council proceed to his installation" The announcement of the decision was received quietly, there being but few present besides the members but gentlemen on the Board of Trustees of Andover were highly elated regarding the outcome as it complete vindication of their action Dr Smyth took the matter very quietly, having evidently expected no other result.

WHAT REPUBLICANISM HAS DONE

[Lewiston Journal.]

It is noticeable that the stale accusation that the Republican party is the 'plant tool of the money power,' and its policy hostile to the interests of the poor man, had very little affect in the election just closed in Maine From 1877 to 1879-80, when hard times prevailed, demagogues who were seeking votes to lift them into office, used this appeal with great effect.

It is not surprising that thousands of honest men who had been Republicans, were led to believe that the depression in business and the stagnation of industries were due to the resumption act and the Republican financial policy They saw a fruitful country in the midst of great distress, and it was the easiest thing in the world to accept the solution that Republican legislation enacted as it was charged, in the interest of the money power had brought it about When Republican papers and speakers explained that the condition of the country was due to the exhaust on of a four years' war, involving a gigantic expenditure of treasure and blood whose deleterious effects were exaggerated by the distrust and uncertainty caused by a disordered and depreciated currency and when they argued that the remedy was to bring all our currency up to par by accumulating a resumption fund and resuming specie payments—it was found that such arguments had little weight in many minds against the noisy assertions of such men as De La Matcyr and Cary that the Republicans were in league with the 'money power,' and that resumption was an impossibility, and that, if attempted it would complete the prostration of business take bread from the mouths of laborers' and cause grass to grow in the streets

But when resumption came so silently and successfully just as the Republicans said it would when after three years' experience it proved to be the friend of the laborer and the poor man rather than the money power, when it was demonstrated that the soft money policy would have increased the evils flowing from a disordered and depreciated currency, while the Republican policy had overcome those evils and secured a return of prosperity a revival of industries and an improvement in wages—then the noisy appeals of demagogues to poor men to vote against the Republican party as a pliant tool of the money power, created only disgust

It is now coming to be understood that the general financial policy of the Republican party has been shown by the progress of events to be the wisest and best that could have been devised and in the interest of the workingmen and the producers of the country

Its policy exempted national bonds from local taxation Why? Because it was known that if they were subject to such taxation very few could possibly be reached by the assessors, while the rate of interest that the people would have to pay on government loans would be about two per cent higher in consequence of the liability By exempting them from the usual taxation the government, like the people could borrow money two per cent less than otherwise and thus practically collect a tax of two per cent on all bonds and secure the same by deducting it from the rate of interest So clear is this now that at the last session of Congress when a bill was passed to authorize the refunding of a part on of the debt a clause exempting it from taxation was adopted without a dissenting voice

A great howl was made against the policy of the Republican party in incredibly maligning the faith of the government towards its creditors We were told that we were looking out solely for bloated bondholders, and neglecting to protect the interests of the tax payers It was very difficult to make many persons see how important it was that the Nation should maintain its good faith and that by so doing it would be able to reduce the rate of interest on its bonds and save not only its good name but also more money than could be saved by any evasion of its promise But now intelligent persons clearly see that the Republican policy was not only be honest policy, but the most profitable, for by such a course the government has so improved its credit that it can borrow all the money it wants at 3 per cent, whereas it was paying 6 and even 7 and 10 per cent If we had adopted the policy advocated by the Carys we should have destroyed our credit and have found ourselves unable to borrow money at even 6 per cent and at the same time plunged our currency into irredeemable depreciation and disorder

We might go on to show that the protective tariff policy the tax policy and all other features of the Republican policy have been also in the interest of all classes, and especially in the interest of the laborer and poor man But there is no need of doing this for the prosperity of the country during the past three years, under this Republican policy, is evidence of its beneficence The country is enjoying a larger measure of prosperity than ever before Every branch of industry is in good condition Every man who wants to work, finds an opportunity at good wages! A million and a half of poor men from other countries have come here within three years to improve their condition. The fact that none of them want to return, and the fact that not a single American has emigrated to Europe to improve his condition afford indubitable proofs that this country under Republican policy is the best for the poor man and the laborer on the face of the earth

The New York Sun shows its peculiar inconsistency when it urges the Democrats in that State to make an effort to carry the Legislature in order to carry out its reform propositions, and then remarks that the last Legislature which was Democratic made a record so bad as to evoke the condemnation of the great body of the people, irrespective of party.—Boston Journal,

"The possibilities in the way of Democratic blundering are always boundless, is the sage conclusion reached by the New York Tribune

Want of rest, was the excuse that Senator Bayard gave for not speaking against prohibition in Ohio But the Portland Press thinks it is more probable that the real reason was for want of arguments.

WHERE WILL IT END?

[Boston Journal.]

Intelligence from South Carolina forces one to the conclusion that the Bourbons in that State have again resorted to acts of intimidation and violence to repress the votes of the majority The red shirt clubs are again wearing their uniforms, boarding trains, intimidating speakers, breaking up meetings and demanding "a division of time" It is not the Republican party, the carpet baggers scalawags and negroes who are the objects of the present series of outrages, but natives of South Carolina who denounce the policy of the Republicans, Greenbackers and so called independents in common. They are men who have been Democrats but are now Independents, for what reason it is unnecessary to say, it being sufficient for this inquiry that they are the objects of shameless persecution and outrage What occurred at Winnsboro a few days since is a disgrace to a State which has a semblance of government Imagine in a State of the North a lawless company of men, under the command of a "Colonel" boarding a train upon which were two candidates of the Greenback party who were on their way to hold a meeting and heaping the foulest abuse upon them, frightening one of them so that he went to bed when he arrived in the town

Imagine the Chairman of a Democratic or a Republican or a Greenback County Committee in a Northern State going to an opponent who had a meeting appointed and telling him that he must either agree to a division of time or have no meeting Imagine a howling mob in a Massachusetts town rushing into a hotel in which there was a speaker of the opposite party and so bent on violence that the man only escaped with his life by being taken to a third story and concealed. One cannot imagine it because it could not be The very ringleaders of such a mob would be put in jail in an hour, and the best men in the party to which they belonged would be among the first to insist upon their punishment

It is high time that this lawlessness be suppressed in South Carolina It is high time that the Wade Hamptons and the Butlers who have influence in the State put forth the first honest effort to secure free speech in South Carolina The outrages which the Democrats of that State have perpetrated upon the Greenbackers and Independents during the past two weeks would be a disgrace to a half civilized people When will this outrage upon free speech and rights of citizens end? The close of the war is nearly twenty years away—how many more years must elapse ere a citizen of the United States can safely proclaim his political opinions in South Carolina? Not while the leading journals of the Democratic party of the State—like the Charleston News—refer to such outrages as that to which we have referred as mere gibes, at which the editors cannot help laughing The leaders are responsible for this state of things—the suppression of free speech and of free and fair elections

NEW BOOKS

We have received from the publishers the following new books, which are for sale by D Bugbee & Co.

"WRECK OF THE RED BIRD" by George Cary Eggleston G P Putnam's Sons, New York publishers This volume is filled with adventures that will greatly interest the boys It contains six illustrations and is handsomely bound Price $1

THE BEST READING This is a classified bibliography for easy reference with hints on the selection of books and includes lists of the most desirable works, with prices annexed Price $1 G Putnam's Sons

"THE AGE OF FABLE," or Beauties of mythology by Thomas Bulfinch This is a new, enlarged and illustrated edition, revised by Rev E E. Hale S W Tilton & Co, Boston publishers Price handsomely bound $2 00

The Democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire must have felt that he was administering an open rebuke to his own party friends when he deplored the use of money in elections During the last ten years the managers in that party have persistently sought for a wealthy candidate for Governor and some of them have been more frank than discreet in expressing the object of such search

It is said that the election returns this year have been made up in better shape than ever before by the clerks of the several towns in this State This is the result of the attempt by Garcelon and his Council to steal the State

The court of inquiry which is to investigate the circumstances connected with the loss of the Jeannette has been organized, and the examination will be begun forthwith That it will be attended by any important results is not likely In view of the care with which the Jeannette was fitted up, and the spirit in which the ill fated enterprise was undertaken by all those who took any part in it all the chances are that the inquiry will merely result in a demonstration of the general supposition that the Jeannette was wrecked because no ship built with human hands can withstand the tremendous pressure of the moving ice which renders the navigation of the Arctic ocean so extraordinarily perilous But if it serves to quiet the sinister stories which have been set afloat it will not have been held in vain.—Philadelphia North American

The New York Times says No other American politician has described so large and complete a circle as Butler Ex Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin, who is making Democratic speeches in the far West like a belated ghost, comes nearer to Butler's ideal of shiftiness than any other man But Doolittle has not yet got around to the point from which he started, and he is too near the end of the allotted age of man to hope to rival Butler in his travels Butler is the Capt Cook of politics He has circumnavigated the globe. He has gone in to the same hole he came out of He has swung clean round the circle And now, sitting down with the patriarchs—washed and unwashed—of the Massachusetts Democracy, his measure of contentment is full. Henceforth, whatever becomes of the Governorship he is the leading Democrat of New England, ready capable, and willing to fill any position in a National Democratic administration

A Washington despatch says "Mr J Stanley Brown, late Private Secretary to President Garfield, has abandoned the brokerage business, and will become Chief Clerk of the Geological survey"

In 1877, 850 000,000 letters passed through the post in France, and in 1881 they numbered 1 350,000,000 The number of newspapers has increased from 219 000 000 in 1877 to 364 000 000 in 1881, and 48,000,000 francs were collected by the postal service in 1881, as against 6,700,000 francs in 1877.

THE STRIKES.

The Strike Said to Have Been Instigated by Lynn Manufacturers.

BIDDEFORD, Oct. 2. The trouble between the shoe manufacturers and help continues. The manufacturers claim that owing to the necessity of transporting their material from Massachusetts and the higher freight for marketing manufactured goods and the increased expense on selling, they cannot afford to pay the prices here that are paid in Massachusetts; but that the difference in price is more than counterbalanced in the relative cost to the workmen of living. The manufacturers it is thought would have granted in the beginning an increase of about eight per cent. in some goods, but they still refuse to accede to the demand of twenty-five per cent. All but the lasters are anxious to return to their work. The strike was originated by the Lynn manufacturers, who were underbid by the manufacturers here.

THE PURINGTON MURDER.

The Coroner's Jury Unable to Gain Any Light.

BATH, Oct. 2. The coroner's jury finished their deliberations this afternoon on the death of Joseph Purington, seventy-four years of age, who was found battered, senseless and dying on the lower floor of his house, Wednesday, with money and valuables missing. Purington had probably been lying in this condition forty hours when discovered. He died Friday noon without becoming conscious, leaving the affair enveloped in mystery. The verdict of the jury is that the death was caused by concussion of the brain from wounds received, but in what manner produced is to the jury unknown. The affair creates quite a sensation.

WHAT ARE WE COMING TO!

A Man Assaulted and Robbed of $1300.

ROCKLAND, Oct. 2. John Fuller, a trader at Blackington's Corner, was returning to his boarding house a little after midnight last night and when near the store he was assaulted by two men in disguise, knocked senseless and robbed of about $1300. Some $200 in the lining of his vest escaped the notice of the robbers. Fuller laid on the ground insensible until he was discovered this morning by the neighbors. There is no clue to the robbers.

BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The Session at Portland.

PORTLAND, Oct. The American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions meet at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon in City Hall, Portland. The programme for Tuesday is: 1, organization; 2, home department; 3, report of the Home Secretary, Rev. E. K. Alden, D. D.; 3, annual survey of the Missions of the Board by the Foreign Secretary, Rev. N. G. Clark, D. D.; 4, Treasurer's report and brief addresses. In the evening the annual sermon by Rev. E. P. Goodwin, D. D. Extensive arrangements have been made to accommodate the visitors at private residences, as the attendance is expected to be large.

Vessels Damaged.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., Oct. 2. Schooner Sardinia, of Rockland, Capt. French, Rondout for Boston, with a cargo of cement, was run into to-day in Vineyard Sound and cut down nearly to the water's edge by the schooner Maud Briggs, of Bangor, and put in here for repairs.

The Last of the Season.

WINTHROP, Oct. 2. The excursions to Maranocook will conclude for this season to-morrow, when Palestine Encampment, No. 37, of Lynn, accompanied by the Lynn City Band, will be tendered a complimentary excursion by Worumbus Encampment, No. 13, of Lewiston, whose guests they are. They will arrive at 11. A good programme has been arranged.

Entertainment at Lewiston.

LEWISTON, Oct. 2. Palestine Encampment, of Lynn, Mass., eighty-six men, with the City Band, of Lynn, twenty-five pieces, arrived in Lewiston this afternoon as the guests of Worumbus Encampment. After a parade there was a banquet at City School Hall, where 250 sat down. This evening there was a grand ball in City Hall.

Outside Aid.

BOSTON, Oct. 2. A convention was held by the Shoe Lasters' Union, of New England at Lynn yesterday, Lynn, Salem, Biddeford, Danvers, Beverly and other places being represented by delegates. A New England Lasters' Union was formed and officers elected. It was voted to extend financial aid to the lasters of Biddeford now on strike, until the trouble is adjusted.

Didn't Like Their Quarters.

ROCKLAND, Oct. 2. Thomas Ryan, alias Thomas Buchanan, a tramp, who was convicted last week of assault and battery and who was confined in the cellar basement of the Court House for sentence, escaped this morning in company with another tramp who was awaiting trial, by removing the bars of the window of the cell. A third prisoner in the cellar had not time to escape. It is supposed that they took to the woods.

Sentenced for Stealing Letters.

PORTLAND, Oct. 2. Albert S. Quincy was sentenced to fifteen months in the State Prison to-day for stealing letters from a box in the post office.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Alabama Claims.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. The Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims will meet Wednesday, October 4th, in accordance with the announcement made July 13th. But few claims have been filed and not one is ready for trial. A further adjournment is therefore probable.

The Public Debt.

The public debt statement issued to-day shows a decrease of debt during September of $14,305,949 83.

MEETING OF THE VETERANS.

Grand Army Reunion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 2. The Grand Army of the Republic, of Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia, is holding a reunion here to-day. The city has put on its gala dress. All the business houses, hotels, newspaper offices and public buildings are profusely decorated with evergreen and bunting. The streets are thronged with people and it is estimated that 50,000 strangers are in the city. This afternoon the Grand Army will have a parade and review, which it is expected will be participated in by fully 10,000 veterans. In the evening a banquet or camp fire will be given at the Coliseum in honor of the visitors.

New York Politics.

HEPBURNE DECLINES THE NOMINATION AS CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE.

JUDGE FOLGER'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. Hon. A. S. Hepburne, Republican nominee for Congressman-at-Large, has written to the State Committee declining to run. He writes: "It is quite apparent that owing to the unfortunate circumstances that have come to light since the adjournment of the convention, a very large portion of the Republicans of the State are not disposed to accept its conclusions as the authoritative utterance of the party. Nothing should be left undone to secure unity and harmony in the party, and I don't think it right to enter upon a canvass without an earnest effort in that direction. It seems to me, for the purpose of obtaining such a result, all questions should be submitted anew to the representatives of the party assembled for such purpose, and in furtherance of that object I deem it my duty to acquaint you with my declination of said nomination."

Secretary Folger's Letter.

Secretary Folger's letter, accepting the Republican nomination for Governor is made public. After referring to the composition of the State convention, at which the nominations were made, and to the proceedings before it, he expresses the conviction that the nominations made by the convention were entirely regular and entitled to the support of the party. He continues: "Yet it would be idle to affect not to know that the public mind is stirred by reports of doings in which the convention as a body had no part; doings of a quality which honest and highminded men cannot approve and will not tamely tolerate. No one claims, no one believes I had lot or part therein or previous hint or suspicion thereof.

I Scorn

an end to be got by such means. I will not undertake to measure the truth of all these reports; that of one is beyond dispute. Nor will I argue whether or not the results reached by the convention, or any of the processes toward them, were shaped or affected thereby. The facts are public and every one may form his own judgment. But there is growing thereout a practical question and it is brought to me for answer. Persons, some holding official relations with the Republican party and all of good standing in the community have asked me to decline the nomination

made at Saratoga. They express confidence in me, and fully acquit me of participation, or knowledge of that which they hold will justify the action they desire. The acts conceded or alleged to have been done upon which they base their request they also concede were wholly acts of others than me. I have deliberately and anxiously considered the matter, weighed the reasons they present, and forecasted the consequences. The matter has two aspects—personal and public. As I sought not the nomination, so I was not glad when it came to me, as I could always have seen and could now see it go to another without one twinge of regret, I have no

Personal Reason

why I should not refuse it with alacrity, but the matter is not solely or chiefly personal. It has a wider and vastly more important scope. In my judgment for one placed as I am at this time to decline the nomination would produce the utter collapse of the Republican party. It would be to leave the party on the late eve of a highly important election without a candidate for the chief State in the Union. Mr. Folger argues that in the event of his resignation the only course for the Republicans would be to call another convention for which the time is

Too Short

and continues: For me to decline them is to leave the Republican party without a candidate, and the practical result of this is not only the certain election of a Democratic Governor, but the complete disorganization and disintegration of the Republican party with all the adverse consequences, State and National to follow therefrom. The responsibility for such a result is too great to put upon one man. I have naught to say for myself. I make no plea for myself. If I am defeated and it be a disappointment it will not be the first that has met me. Be the result what it may to me I will not take the responsibility of breaking and destroy the Republican party of the State of New York. If it is to be defeated at the coming election it must be by the action mission of the Republican voters. It would be my aim, if elected, to be a representative of the whole party subservient only to my duty, to be the chief magistrate of the whole people, unmoved by the appeals of any faction, unswerved by the appliances of private interests acknowledging no claim of mere partizanship, and looking supremely for the good of the commonwealth. Thus far I have assumed the predictions of my interlocutors of disaster are well founded. I do not concede that. There is no need of doleful apprehension.

The Issues

are too grave, the consequences too serious for present disappointments and even righteous indignation to lead to ill advised and fatal action. The Republicans will reflect and reflection by showing what will come of Democratic success will turn aside disaster by prompting to united and vigorous action. I therefore accept the nomination and await the result of the canvass without perturbation.

DEMOCRATIC OUTRAGE.

The South Carolina Murder.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. A Richmond despatch says that private information received there is to the effect that the political riot at Lancaster, S. C., on Thursday, was much more serious than represented in the meagre despatch published the next day. That despatch stated that the number killed was four and a few wounded. It now turns out that there were seven persons killed and some twenty-one wounded. Col. Cash, who was to address the meeting, had to lock himself up to escape the fury of the whites.

A mounted force rode into the town and fired over the heads of the rioting whites on the negroes who were engaged with them, killing and wounding the latter. All the stores in town were closed and every man out was armed. A large quantity of firearms were also sold that day.

It is stated somewhat in justification of the massacre that the negroes had threatened to burn the town and murder the whites, and that the strongest evidences of this purpose were found in not only their actions but in the material and documents in their possession.

YELLOW FEVER.

Latest Reports from the Afflicted Sections.

BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 2. No deaths or new cases of yellow fever have occurred within the past twenty-four hours in this city. The hospital contains no patients suffering from that disease at present. One new case was reported from Fort Brown. About 100 sick are with the fever inside the cordon, including Brownsville and Matamoras, but nearly all are convalescent. The fever is about over at Point Isabel. At Mier 500 are sick, with an average death rate of ten daily.

It will be decided this week whether the clock to be placed on the Universalist church will be an illuminated one or not.

An excursion of about fifty school children went from Dover to Katahdin Iron Works Saturday, returning the same day.

One of the bridges a short distance above Oldtown, on the line of the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroads, is undergoing extensive repairs.

E. C. Tibbetts, of East Exeter, with his five sons, threw six votes for Robie and the regular Republican candidates at the recent election.

The White Mountain excursionists leave this morning. The party will doubtless be one of good numbers, and a highly enjoyable trip may be expected.

A brilliant view of the comet was obtained between four and five o'clock yesterday morning. It is a sight well worth the inconvenience of rising early.

A very large and pleasant party passed Sunday at the Silver Lake Hotel, Katahdin Iron Works. The guests at this popular house are mostly from this city.

Prof. Chaplin sailed from Japan in the Strathmore on the 26th of June and is expected to arrive in New York before long. He will be cordially greeted by his many Bangor friends.

Col. J. B. Peakes, of Dover, Insurance Commissioner, passed through the city on Monday, on his way to attend the Convention of Insurance Commissioners, at Niagara Falls, on October 4th.

By an error of the compositor we were made to say yesterday morning that the rate of taxation in this city was $2 90, when it should have been $3 60, which with the 10 per cent. discount makes the rate $2.34 net.

There are now about fifteen millions feet of logs in Pea Cove boom and one half of these will be scaled out this season, a crew of 140 men now being engaged in the work. In the Argyle boom there are about eight million logs.

The annual meeting of the Bangor Art Association will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the Common Council room, for the election of officers and to perfect arrangements for the meetings to be held by the Association during the winter months.

Mr. Timothy B. Grant, one of the leading citizens of Prospect, died at his residence in that village at an early hour yesterday morning. The deceased was widely known and much respected and has held the commission of Postmaster in Prospect for many years.

BOLD BURGLARY AT FOXCROFT. Our Dover correspondent writes: The house of Phillmon Parsons in Foxcroft was entered Sunday while the family was at church, and jewelry and silverware to the value of about $100 taken. As yet there is no clue to the person or persons.

Y. M. C. A. The regular monthly business meeting of the Association will be held this evening commencing at a quarter of eight o'clock, reports from the committees will be read, and business of importance brought before the meeting. The work for boys will commence Wednesday afternoon, when an entertainment will be given for their benefit.

The first of the classes to be held this winter in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening in their hall when Prof. G. T. Moody commenced a course of lessons in vocal instruction. The class was well attended, thirty-four young men being present. The Association offer young men who are members instruction by first class teachers in German, French, Bookkeeping, Penmanship and vocal instruction.

Supt. Tucker, of the Maine Central; J. Murray Kay and Supt. McLeod, of the St. John & Maine, and E. R. Burpee and Henry Osborn, of the New Brunswick Railway, conferred in this city yesterday in regard to the fall time tables to be adopted by the Maine and New Brunswick railroads.

The annual meeting of the Unitarian society was held last evening. The election of officers resulted as follows: Moderator, Lysander Strickland; Clerk, Thos. W. Baldwin; Collector and Treasurer, Mrs. A. B. Emerson; Standing Committee, T. U. Coe, Philo A. Strickland, G. G. Rice, Edward Stetson and Miss Grace Hemenway; Auditor, W. C. Pitman.

MISHAP TO A BRIDGE. The accommodation train last evening over the Maine Central was two hours late in arriving in this city. The reason for the delay was an accident to a bridge between Waterville and West Waterville. The sleepers caught fire and it is understood that the iron bridge then gave way. Passengers were transferred around the broken bridge and came along all right, only somewhat late.

SELLING OTHER PEOPLE'S PROPERTY. On Saturday a young man sold a yoke of oxen to a Bangor butcher for $90. It has since been ascertained that the youthful individual was not the owner of the cattle, but had stolen them from Ira Hill, of Exeter, in whose employ he had been. Mr. Hill has since come to the city and taken the oxen, leaving the butcher minus the money he had paid out. The butcher's name is Robert W. Clark, and the fellow who played the game is Rufus Hillman. It is to be hoped the latter will be captured and receive his just punishment.

RESIGNATION OF REV. MR. JEWELL. Rev. W. H. Jewell, pastor of the Universalist church, has tendered his resignation, to take effect January 1st, at the end of the second year of his pastorate. In an address to the society, Mr. Jewell explained that he took this step on account of ill-health. He extended his sincere thanks to the members, most of whom had treated him kindly, and he hoped that his successor would be one in whom they could find no fault. A meeting of the society was held in the vestry last evening, at which the matter was given consideration.

I. O. G. T. Garfield Lodge, I. O. G. T. of Brewer, will hold their anniversary meeting at the Town Hall, Brewer, this evening. The exercises will consist of the usual Lodge exercises, together with an address of welcome by Rev. Mr. Southard mainly by whose efforts the Lodge was instituted, to be followed by remarks from various members of the Order, singing, declamations, select readings, etc. The Juvenile Temple has been invited and will aid in the work of the evening. All members of the order, in good standing, are cordially invited, and they hope that all their own members will be present, as a grand intellectual entertainment is expected.

A HANDSOME TESTIMONIAL. Mr. W. E. G. Chaplin recently resigned the foremanship of the Union Hose Co., on account of entering the U. S. service as mail carrier. At the regular monthly meeting of the company last evening Mr. Chaplin was presented with, in behalf of the members of the Company with whom he had been associated for about twelve years, a very handsome testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by them. The present was a superb pin of solid gold, with the letters "Foreman, Union Hose 1, Bangor, Me." on the face, and "Presented to W. E. G. Chaplin by Union Hose," on the under side. The badge is a very elegant one and will long be cherished by Mr Chaplin.

THE WOODBURY. The revenue steamer Woodbury, Capt. C. A. Abbey, arrived here last evening from a cruise and reports having taken the British schooner W. H. Lancaster, of Weymouth, N. S., (not W. H. Witburton as previously reported), from a dangerous position on a ledge off Deer Island, Maine, on the 1st inst. The Lancaster had been on shore three days and all efforts to move her had failed. The Woodbury brought her afloat within half an hour and without apparent damage, towing her into Green's Landing, whence she would soon proceed to the eastward. The Woodbury will fill her boiler with fresh water and leave again to-day, cruising to the eastward. She has just finished supplying the Life Saving Stations with fuel.

RAILROAD CHANGES. Supt. Cram and General Ticket Agent Leavitt, of the E. & N. A. Railway, passed Sunday with their wives at Katahdin Iron Works. Mr. Cram has now assumed the duties of General Eastern Freight Agent of the Maine Central Railroad. Mr. Leavitt will remain here six to eight weeks closing up the business of the general ticket office here and will then probably remove to Portland and assume a good position in the office of General Ticket Agent Boothby. Mr. George Crane will continue as Train Despatcher and it is understood will have his office in the Maine Central depot in this city. It is understood that numerous changes will be inaugurated in the running of trains over the E. & N. A. R'y division, and it is expected that all the trains will start from the old Maine Central depot, but that the E. & N. A. trains will stop as usual at the Exchange street station. The E. & N. A. locomotives are to be changed gradually from wood burners to coal burners and eventually coal will be the chief fuel used on the entire Maine Central line. Some marked improvements have recently been made in the ladies' waiting room at the Maine Central depot.

AMUSEMENTS.

Oscar Wilde.

Among the many influences to which the peculiarly susceptible nature of Oscar Wilde became subject during his college career, there were three which undoubtedly gave color and direction to his subsequent life and thought. The first of these was Ruskin. He delivered a series of lectures on Florentine during Wilde's first term at Oxford. Wilde became one of his most devoted disciples. In Florence for the first time Wilde really appreciated the spirituals in art. He went through the magnificent churches, studied the works of the great masters and came back to England saturated with the memories of what he had seen. In his search for the worship of the "Beautiful" Mr. Wilde became identified with the present æsthetic movement in England. Having become identified with the æsthetic movement it was inevitable that Mr. Wilde should at the same time become identified with the exaggerated expression of its ideas.

"The Decorative Arts," which is the topic of Mr. Wilde's lecture to-night at the Opera House, is an exposition of the use of the "Beautiful" in the common every day relations of ordinary life. Mr. Wilde will also introduce observations upon the modes of dress and character of ornaments worn by both sexes, and will give his impressions upon art subjects as gathered during a tour of six months in all parts of the United States and Canadas.

The reserved seat sale yesterday at the box office of the Opera House was large, being principally sold to the "bon-ton" of Bangor. The box office will be open at the usual hour to-day for balance of seats on sale.

GIGANTIC ENTERPRISE.

A GREAT MANUFACTURING ESTABLISHMENT ON THE PENOBSCOT.

The Erection of a Mammoth Pulp-Mill at West Great Works—A Description of the Immense Brick Structure Being Reared by the Penobscot Chemical Fibre Company.

West Great Works is now the centre of wide-spread interest. It is with no small degree of pleasure that the establishment of important manufacturing enterprises in the Penobscot Valley is witnessed by our people. The line of the future growth of this section is, largely in the direction of the development of the great water powers on the Penobscot and its important tributaries.

We possess all the natural advantages for manufacturing on a large scale. The Penobscot river, in its flow from Oldtown to our city, makes a very marked descent, and at numerous places in the intervening distance exist magnificent water powers which are now but very imperfectly utilized. In the not remote future these eligible locations for thriving establishments are to come into additional prominence. Already this subject is coming rapidly to the front. The Bodwell Water Power Company, not very long since incorporated, are taking measures to develop the great privilege between Oldtown and Milford, and at West Great Works the Penobscot Chemical Fibre Company are now engaged in constructing one of the largest pulp mills in the country. Frequent mention has been made in our columns of the latter enterprise, but a somewhat more detailed description will give our readers a more perfect understanding in regard to the magnitude of the undertaking.

The organization of the Penobscot Chemical Fibre Co. was perfected last winter. This corporation is composed of Boston capitalists of great wealth, and the $200,000 which was at first put into the treasury will be largely increased. Mr. G. Schenck, of Boston, is the Treasurer, and the active manager of the company. After examining various locations the company purchased a privilege of W. T. Pearson, Esq., at West Great Works, and early in June, ground was broken. Since that time a large crew of men have been employed, but the work has been of such a nature that the results did not begin to make much show until within the past few weeks. Preparing the site and building the very solid foundation has been a somewhat slow operation but, considering the substantial manner in which the massive work has been done, rapid progress has been made. A visit to the scene of operations, yesterday, gave our reporter an excellent opportunity to behold the great transformation. The work is, as yet, far from completion but the army of several hundred laborers make very rapid progress and each day witnesses a very noticeable advancement towards the completion of the mammoth establishment.

The great structure is being erected just below the saw mill of Wm. T. Pearson & Co., and runs parallel to the county road along the river front. The mammoth building is being constructed of brick and its entire length will be 346 feet. Commencing at the northern extremity, the boiler and engine house will be 52 feet by 146, and this portion will be connected by a covered passage way with the liquor tank room. Between these two rooms will be two large chimneys which now tower to considerable height, and when completed will be each about 125 feet high. One of these chimneys will be for the boilers and the other used as a reclaimer. The liquor tank room will be 40 feet by 146 in size. Then come the digester and draining tank room which together will be 63 feet by 80. The next department will be the engine room which is to be 117 feet by 70 and to the westward of this on the front will be a chipper room, 34 feet by 40. The most southerly department will be the machine room, the dimensions of which will be 56 feet by 140. The average height of the brick work on the front is 26 feet and on the rear 40 feet, and the whole will be surmounted with pitch roofs, which will be slated.

The immensity of the building will be conceived from, the amount of material entering into its construction. The quantity of brick required is about three millions and the crew of fifty masons are now laying brick at the rate of 60,000 to 75,000 per day. An immense amount of rock was used in the foundations, which on the river front are from 12 to 20 feet high, 7 to 8 feet wide at base and 3 wide at top. Over three hundred windows will supply light for the establishment. There will be sixty-eight large trusses required for the roof. In front of the building, between it and the main road, a mammoth canal is being dug which will be about 460 feet long and 25 feet wide in the clear and of a depth to allow 10 feet of water. From the southern end of the two canals extend two iron penstocks 9 feet in diameter and which will supply the power to the wheels in the engine room, the water being discharged through the tail race into the river. In making the excavation for the canal it is found necessary to do a great deal of blasting and from 3,000 to 4,000 yards of ledge will have to be removed.

The work is being prosecuted with great vigor and during last week a large force of men worked nights, an electric light furnishing the illumination. The stone work, excavating and building the foundation is done by Farrell & Sawyer Brothers, the brickwork is in the charge of Sawyer Brothers & Snow, and the carpenter work was contracted by Charles B. Brown. The architects are D. H. and A. B. Tower, of Holyoke, Mass., and the resident engineer is T. H. Baldwin, who has been represented most of the time by P. H. Coombs. J. M. Davis has been secured by Mr. Brown, and has a force of eighteen carpenters, framing windows. It is an interesting spectacle to witness the planing of the 200,000 ft. hard pine which came from Georgia for use in the mill. These timbers are 12 inches by 12 inches and 56 feet long, and they are planed very successfully by a mammoth planer, a yoke of oxen furnishing the power. This is a method which originated with Mr. Brown.

An activity not known before is now visible around West Great Works. The material to be used in the construction of the mill comes almost entirely by railroad and the number of loaded cars arriving daily with freight for this establishment is from 14 to 18. A very large amount of machinery has already arrived and the remainder is about ready for shipment. It all comes from the Boston Machine Co.'s Works. If the weather continues favorable it is hoped the great building will get roofed in before snow flies and that it will commence operations during the latter portion of the winter.

The mill will be devoted entirely to the manufacture of pulp and the wood used will be poplar and spruce. There is now a probability of the canal being still further extended at an early day and a large paper mill being erected just below the pulp mill.

A MEMORIAL HALL.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

Mr. Editor:—The propriety of building a Memorial Hall in some central locality in our city to perpetuate the patriotism, valor and sacrifices made by our citizen soldiers who laid down their lives on bloody battle fields, that the Union might be kept "one and inseparable," must I think, meet the approval of every lover of his city and country. In nearly every Northern city, a memorial of some kind can be seen, elegantly and substantially built, so that these tokens of appreciation and respect by the present generation may we hope, prove a glorious incentive in the ages to come to the youth who will be called upon to control the destinies of our Nation.

The members of B. H. Beale Post, No. 12, Grand Army of the Republic, together with members of the Art, Historical and Library Associations, have had this enterprise under consideration for some time, and desire—with the assistance of our citizens who feel favorably disposed—to carry this project forward.

Can this grand and patriotic object be accomplished? I think it could, if the City of Bangor would furnish a building site for the proposed "Memorial Hall," and the associations above mentioned, with the assistance of our citizens, would take hold of the matter in earnest, a building could be erected costing say, from twenty to thirty thousand dollars. It could be understood that the property at its completion should belong to the City of Bangor, the associations already named to occupy the same as long as they continue to be organized bodies.

The Grand Army of the Republic in a few years will cease to exist, their ranks are depleting and cannot be recruited. When that time comes, the hall they shall have occupied can be kept—as they leave it—sacred to the memory of the principles they fought for, or it can be used for historical purposes. The building can be surmounted by an equestrian statue in bronze, or made of cannon captured in our late war, of some one of our many eminent citizen soldiers.

If such an enterprise meet the approval of our citizens, there would, I think, be no objection to having the city fathers set off the vacant lot corner Hammond and Columbia streets, or some other suitable site for this proposed "Memorial."

New Advertisements.

Messrs. J. E. Chapman & Co. have a large and very attractive advertisement in another column. Their stock of clothing is one of the most complete in the city as they have two stores filled with seasonable goods. Their business is conducted on the one-price system and they claim that their customers save from five to twenty per cent. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to pay their stores a call and examine the goods.

For the next thirty days D. Bugbee & Co. offer a stylographic pen and a bottle of ink for $1 00.

W. P. Dickey & Co. are taking orders for outside windows.

See notice for rent.

Miss Georgia Brown has returned to Bangor and will attend to dressmaking at 41 Summer st., or at residence.

FROM LINCOLN.

Bold Depredations by Thieves.

Lincoln seems to be cursed just now with house breakers. Friday before last the station of the E. & N. A. Railway was broken into. The thief obtained entrance by breaking a window and raising the sash. The drawer was broken and $4.25 in coin taken. The ticket case was also broken open.

Last Friday the Express office was broken open and three patterns of dress goods taken belonging to Nute & Rooks, valued at $30. These goods were afterward found under the grist mill by three boys, who were after worms for bait.

Sunday night a large lock was broken at the Lincoln Hotel, by which the thief gained admission to the cellar, but was unable to ascend into the house.

These depredations are so bold that it seems probable that the thief or thieves will be caught. The deputy sheriff has got some clues and we hope is on the track of the right parties.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS

The best results from wood ashes are secured by adding a small proportion of common salt Ashes contain all the mineral elements of the plant, and they exert a good influence in unlocking fertility that would not be otherwise available In burning anything the chlorine it contains is carried off with the smoke, and salt, chloride of sodium supplies the deficiency

Sheep are the best stock to feed in orchards The most approved rule is to put in more sheep than the grass will keep, and supplement the feed by rations of grain. To prevent sheep gnawing the bark of trees wash the latter with a mixture of carbolic soap in water together with the sheep droppings This applied once a week as high up on the trees as the sheep will reach is effectual

According to the London Times, the English wheat crop of this season will fall below the average of the past five years, both in quantity and quality. This statement becomes still more significant in view of the fact that the yield of recent seasons has been inferior to that of former years The number of acres planted in wheat was nearly a million less in 1881 than in 1874

Excepting dogs all other kinds of stock pay their way on the farm Dogs never do, or at least not one in 100 000 is worth the money it costs to maintain his useless existence. Dogs are the bane of sheep growers in most sections, and the worthless curs that abound in cities make wool growing impossible for a distance of six to ten miles on each side Scotch Collie dogs alone, well trained seem the only specimens of the canine race worth the farmer's attention

A badly worn or broken down farm implement of any kind is a bad investment The loss of time from stoppage when work should be hurried is usually more expensive than the money cost of repairs Too much repairing cannot be afforded for an old implement wagon or other vehicle The story is told of a man who said the worst luck that ever befel him was finding a linch pin. I was of no use until he had first a wheel and finally an entire wagon, which being made in pieces proved twice as costly as the purchase of a new one

Hereford cattle are a distinct and pure breed of great antiquity. Their early history is uncertain but it is generally allowed in England that there has been a breed of cattle red and mostly with white face and markings for at least 200 years in the county of Hereford and the neighboring counties It is asserted that Lord Scudamore, who died in 1671, introduced cows of the red with white faced breed from Flanders There was also a breed of cattle known in Herefordshire that were white with red ears, and so far back as the tenth century it is recorded that there was a law of fixed compensation to be paid for injury done by one prince to another at 100 white cows with red ears and a bull of the same color It is fairly proved that the Herefords of to day have sprung directly from the old breeds of the district, the old gray Hereford coming from the white cattle with red ears, an occasional white Hereford cropping up as an additional proof of this statement.

HOW TO LEARN FARMING.

It is impossible says the American Cultivator, to learn farming in a few easy lessons Years of practical experience are required, and though such a teacher may be the dearest yet it is unquestionably the best There are at all times in this country many individuals who fancy that they would like farming and are anxious to learn its best methods Unfortunately few of these are young men and fewer still are willing to commence at the beginning and plod upward as one must in so prosaic a business as farming Most of these persons have high notions of the improvements they can make in the common farm methods All these facts tell against the probability of success. It was we believe one of the best of Dickens characters good, honest Joe Gargery who advised Pip that the way to become an uncommon scholar was to first make one's self a good common scholar There is sound philosophy in this advice and it is especially applicable to farming Not to underrate the good work done by amateurs and fancy farmers it is still certain that most of the great improvements in farming methods have been introduced by those born and bred on the farm and dependent on it for their livelihood and success John Johnston, who introduced tile draining in this country, is perhaps the best example of this type of farmers If he had been a man of wealth taking up under draining as a favorite hobby upon which to spend his surplus money, he would have had few followers Being a poor man heavily in debt for his farm and paying for it by the judicious and liberal use of money in tiles and sheep, his example proved contagious The great majority of enterprising American farmers were in his condition hence that which was good for him was presumably good for them also

Probably the best method of becoming a good farmer for one who had no practical experience is to serve an apprenticeship working with and for the best farmer in the vicinity and studying his methods Of course few or no wealthy men will do this, though so distinguished a personage as Peter the Great of Russia worked for years as an apprentice at ship building until he had thoroughly mastered the art But successful farming is much more complex than any trade, and demands more constant thought than most branches of professional life, together with executive ability equal to the management of any business. Is it to be wondered at that success so rarely crowns the efforts of those who begin farming after middle age and with little knowledge of its details?

It must be remembered that farming is now, in most localities a much more complicated art than it was thirty to fifty years ago. Knowledge gained then will not avail now In some sections the substitution of mixed husbandry in place of one or two staples has driven from their farms the original occupants who could not or would not learn the new methods It is no longer possible anywhere to farm in the old ruts as was done by nearly everybody when the country was new and the successive crops of wheat, cotton, or tobacco was the sole rotation until the soil became too poor to produce a crop. There are but few localities now where some effort is not required to restore or at least to maintain fertility Such efforts require thought and investigation.

It is, of course, quite unprofessional for an agricultural writer to deprecate the value of what is called "book farming" But such teaching certainly needs to be taken with due consideration and caution. It requires a good practical and thoughtful farmer to get the most benefit from agricultural books and newspapers. There is not a periodical in the country that will not be worth many times its cost, by its practical hints and suggestions, to the thoughtful mind. On the other hand there is none, however carefully edited, that will not result in heavy losses if its advice is implicitly followed without due regard to varying conditions There is, in fact, no method adapted to all times, all localities and all circumstances. The main office of the agricultural paper is to incite thoughts to prompt action and to stimulate investigation.

It may be added, however, that there is no young, able bodied man, of fair natural shrewdness who may not hope to become a successful landholder and farmer in almost any section of this country if he sets himself to work with that end in view. It is not necessary to go West, as Horace Greeley advised, though undoubtedly that section has its advantages, yet dear as land is in some of the Eastern States there is no place where judicious management with certain crops will not pay for an acre in a single year with the crop grown there from This is emphatically true of market gardeners in and around large cities It is not for tyros, but for men who thoroughly understand their business that such successes come Many of these successful cultivators of the soil began in poverty and worked their way to financial prosperity While it is true that rose colored views of the farmer's life may lead to sad failures, yet opposite views which exhibit success to farming as attainable only by those already in possession of accumulated wealth, are scarcely less deplorable

GERSTER AT HOME.

DOMESTIC LIFE OF A PRIMA DONNA.

[Italian Letter.]

About ten miles from Bologna, is the station of Sasso on the road to Fiorence Alighting at this station, a ride of ten minutes along a green valley with the high peaks of the Appenines on either side, brings you to a rather imposing lodge guarding the entrance to a road which leads up a high hill Turning into and following this well shaded lane a steep ascent of fifteen minutes lands you at the top of the hill and before you stretches as far as the eye can see, a charming grove of chestnut trees Still following the fine road, you soon turn sharply to the left, and before you appears a large and inviting villa three stories high and with out wings, with several handsome outbuildings near it On drawing near the villa two iron gates are thrown open and driving through them you discover a mid a bevy of servants a smiling and friendly face which is familiar to thousands of Americans The full but pliant and graceful figure is well set off by an appropriate and effective dress of a cool material The hand of this lady clasps that of a little child whose head scarcely reaches the knees of its mother and whose dark eyes open wide with interest, and in an instant we alight from the carriage and receive a warm welcome from Etelka Gerster and t k i s from her little daughter Linda

Mme Gerster regrets that her husband Dr Gardini is away from home for a few days, but does the honors with double hospitality in consequence Her home is called the "Villa Mezzana" and it is a large and very handsomely furnished and decorated house The walls are all laid in panels in each of which is a painting very excellently done in spite of the rough material on which the artist worked The estate is very large, and embraces twelve farms, and has upon it a private and well appointed chapel for the use of the family and the tenants

Mme Gerster had a good womanly training, and she applies her knowledge with rare skill She is the absolute mistress of her home Each day's duties necessarily vary a little but a sketch of her occupations for one day will give an idea of her life here

Having accepted an invitation to accompany my hostess to the meat market I leave my room at a little after 6 in the morning and go down stairs where Mme Gerster soon joins me. She has already had her bath and her maid has been combing her hair for an hour Presently the carriage drives up and when we are seated the head cook—for her m i le cook has two assistants—appearing with a huge basket mounts in the footman's accustomed place After a rapid drive of fifteen minutes the market is reached and Mme Gerster enter and immediately begins her purchases The whole beef is strung up before her and she selects the portion and watches it cut and weighed and put in the basket Then the cook takes the book and waits to have the entries made, while we re enter the carriage and the housewife examines her list and adds up her figures, which are compared with the book which the cook has now brought back and the homeward drive begins.

At the villa we find the family enjoying the delicious morning air and we join them until 8 o'clock when we are summoned to breakfast At this as well as other meals the hostess presides pours the coffee carves makes the salad and oversees her child's meal and keeps up a bright and general conversation An hour after breakfast her inspection of her house begins, and every part is visited from top to bottom

I was much struck with her system Each department is under the care of a servant who is responsible for everything under her charge In each department is a small closet filled with books, on which hang the keys of the department and over each book is a plain label The key of the closet is kept by the servant of the department, and no other servant has access to it although Mme Gerster has duplicate keys to all the closets

This examination over, in less than an hour we are again off on another tour of inspection This time some of the farms are to be looked after and the mistress is protected from the rays of the hot sun by a large straw hat, but her hands are unincumbered by a parasol Her short walking dress reveals her walking boots, and an air of business about not only her make up but her quick gait leads me to believe I am in for a long jaunt So it proved After seven farms have been inspected I cry out for mercy Then we stop on the top of a mountain, and, protected by the branches of a fine old chestnut, we rest while we look far below us upon the winding valley and straight before along the peaks of the surrounding Appenines and eat the grapes that the last tenant has proudly pressed upon us

In three quarters of an hour we are at home again when after resting a little and reading the morning mail Mme Gerster goes to her private music room adjoining her "retreat," filled with the photographs of her friends and her personal treasures, and in which she reads or writes when she wishes solitude, and I hear her patiently and conscientiously practicing her scales and her exercises for an hour accompanying herself on a pianoforte

Then dinner is announced and a charming meal is made There is no hurry, and full justice is done the fine repast, and full sway is given to the family communion The hostess herself seems overflowing with good spirits, and 4 o'clock has come before we realize how rapidly the time is passing After desert we all go to the salon on the first floor, directly under the spacious and elegant music room, containing among other appropriate furniture, a pianoforte, and here some read, others sew and talk, and I join the group, which includes my hostess, that, gathered around a table, are cutting out of pasteboard, on which certain articles of furniture are printed, a full drawing-room suite for little Linda's "baby house"

We work and chat until 6 o'clock, when the entire party, consisting of Mme Gerster, her mother, sister, aunt, cousin Linda, start for a long stroll over the place. We walk among the gnarled chestnuts to two summer houses, advantageously placed at convenient resting distances, and then skirt the plateau to a striking house with turrets, that overhangs the valley below, making a conspicuous landmark for miles around. Here we rest again and then saunter back to the villa in twilight along a broad, straight, turfed walk fifty feet wide, with trees on either side, that leads from the "lookout" to the villa. Here we seat ourselves in easy-chairs outside the house around a big stationary stone table, and presently the servants appear with candles and spread our tea, which we enjoy every evening in the open air

Then we still remain outside until shortly after 9 o'clock, the mistress is summoned by the butler and she retires within, where her servants are gathered, to give the directions for the following day. When she returns we talk and look lazily upon the stars for a brief time and then with a general impulse all retire and by 10 o'clock the villa is closed for the night.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors bills It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame —Civil Service Gazette

Country Gentleman,

THE BEST OF THE

AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES.

Enlargement for 1883

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, it occupies the FIRST RANK. It is believed to have no equal in either of the three chief divisions of

Farm Crops & Processes, Horticulture & Fruit Growing, Live Stock and Dairying, while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee Keeping, Greenhouse and Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week Its MARKET REPORTS are unusually complete and much attention is paid to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell It is liberally illustrated and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term, a
